

(COOL) FUN AT HOME : DAY 18

UNICORN DAY!

EXPLORE OUTSIDE

RAIN PAINTING: Today's rainy weather doesn't have to be an outside wash out -- give colorful rainbow rain painting a try! This tutorial from Housing a Forest will get you started. (Don't worry -- the kids aren't out in the rain for long!)

LEARN

RHYME TIME: "I Rode a Rainbow Unicorn" is a funny poem by Kenn Nesbitt that is sure to bring some smiles! Read the poem to your child and then challenge them to write their own poem or short story about unicorns! If your child is too young to write, have them verbally tell you the story and you can write it out for them. Don't forget to have them draw a picture to illustrate their story!

CREATIVITY CHALLENGE

FLASHY UNICORNS: Deep Space Sparkle has been offering some amazing "Draw & Paint Along with Patty" Facebook Live sessions -- but our favorite one is "Flashy Unicorn." You and the kids will love it, too!

UNICORN HAND PUPPET: Easy Kids Crafts on YouTube has a fun (and, ahem, easy!) paper unicorn hand puppet craft tutorial. Try it out with your kiddos!

MOVE

UNICORN YOGA: Your child can channel their inner unicorn! Kids will love these yoga moves that will have them raising their horns high and hooves to the sky. Melody of Yoga Lifestyles will lead them in magical stretches and more.

SLIME TIME

UNICORN SLIME

What kid doesn't like slime?! It's one of those things that is kind of instantly magical and seems to immediately put everyone in a good mood (until kitchen clean-up anyway!). Here are two recipes to try from My Frugal Adventures and Kids Activities Blog.

READ

YOU DON'T WANT A UNICORN

Author Ame Dyckman joined the #OperationStorytime movement by reading her story, "You Don't Want a Unicorn." Your kids will giggle along as she reads -- dressed as as a unicorn.
